Travel Literature:
A Bridge Between World Cultures
(18–19 December 2025)

Department of Arabic, University of the Punjab, Lahore – Pakistan
In collaboration with the Higher Education Commission of Pakistan

Introduction

Travel literature is one of the oldest and most significant literary genres in the Arabic language. It documents journeys and explorations across various regions, reflecting human interaction with new cultures and lands. This literary form has played a key role in transmitting knowledge and promoting cultural exchange between East and West. Legendary Arab travelers like Ibn Battuta and Al-Idrisi emerged as mirrors of their times, offering invaluable insights into the world during the Middle Ages. Over time, travel literature evolved beyond mere geographical and historical documentation.

It became a means of self-discovery, understanding others and examining social and political challenges.

In celebration of World Arabic Language Day, the conference aims to explore the various dimensions of Arabic travel literature—from its origins to the modern era—highlighting its role in fostering cross-cultural communication. The conference also aims to highlight the challenges involved in translating travel literature into other languages. It will explore how this genre serves as a powerful tool for understanding Arab cultural identity and its influence on world literature. We hope this event will provide a valuable platform for academics and researchers from around the globe to exchange ideas and promote intercultural and intellectual dialogue.
